

The Process is
The King

The Winning
Move

There's no "I" in TEAM.
But there is one in WIN.

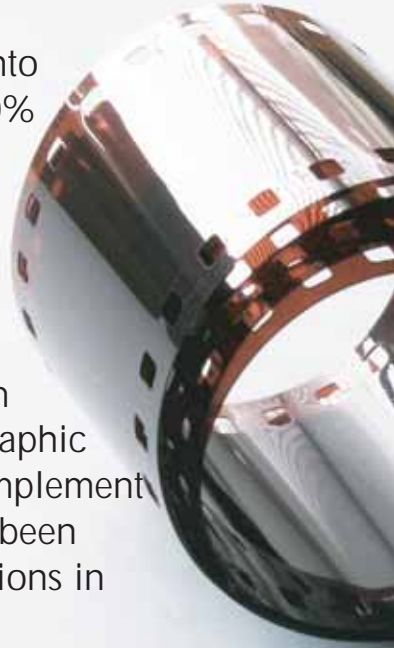

To win in business, you have to have quality people. At One Planet we have the very best. All our translation professionals (carefully screened and tested for their linguistic skills) are dedicated to solving our clients' translation challenges.

The Process.

The actual translation of documents into another language constitutes about 30% of the work involved. The remaining 70% is project management.

Each project's requirements are analyzed by a seasoned Project Manager who leads the project to completion. The PM assembles a team of translators, editors, proofreaders, graphic designers and software engineers to implement a customized process. Our PMs have been trained to exceed customer's expectations in quality and to strive to reduce costs.

 Every company has its own specific language. We reflect this in each and every document. The effect? Linguistically crisp, culturally sensitive translation that sounds like it has been created for that specific market. This crucial service is what differentiates us from our competition.*

You can't lose.

Each quote is prepared by the Project Manager, not an estimator as many other translation companies do. That's why we can guarantee that we'll always finish on time and on budget.

If it ain't broke, don't fix it.

We have developed a best practices library of methods and procedures that we have used successfully in previous projects.

These procedures can be tailored for any project based on size, complexity, team structure and the project objectives. By leveraging past experiences we bring value to all our clients.

The 4-1-1

For multiple projects, and those that take longer than 30 days, we supply clients with weekly status reports. For large-scale projects, we provide Review Reports as well as Progress Reviews.

We are ISO 9001-2000 compliant and use the SAE J2450 standard for measuring quality. Everything we do is fully documented and processes are stringently followed.

Our service does not end at the door.

Once we deliver a translation there's still more to do. Every project undergoes a postmortem evaluation to see what we did well and what we can do to improve the process.

We also ensure that the project's terminology and glossaries are added to a client-specific translation memory so that we can be even faster and more cost-effective for future projects.

Put your best face forward.

Why do our clients tell us our work looks good? Because it is good. It's good, because we become an extension of their team. Their goals are our goals and their success is the only true measure of our success.
